Kyle's Korner

Thirteen years ago - June 18, 2006 - I preached my very first sermon. Why, I don't remember, because I hadn't begun attending classes in the school of preaching, as of yet. For whatever the reason, the elders of the Science Hill congregation saw it as a good opportunity for me. And so, the location of many of my other firsts, as it was the congregation with which I grew up, became the location of my first opportunity to present the gospel message. Much has changed since then…

I also remember that June 18 was Father's Day, and my message of choice had somewhat of a "Fatherly" theme: "For God So Loved the World…" I do not remember all of my points, but I remember its inspiration - John 3:16 - and its reminder to all of the greatest love ever exhibited by our own Father in Heaven, who was willing to give the life of His Son for the sins of the world.

I am happy to still have the opportunity, week in and week out, to preach the gospel, and I must thank each of you, members, for providing me with such a wonderful opportunity to labor with you at Mars Hill.

But, also, remembering my first sermon, I am reminded of the reason I am here. My purpose in serving is to remind us all of the great love of the Father by preaching the message of Christ to the world. All Christians are given responsibility in sharing this great message, and I hope we are doing our very best to do so.
