Because God is the Creator and Sustainer of mankind and because mankind is made in His image, God has an exclusive claim to the life of every human being. Life and death are the purview of God alone (Deut. 32:39). From the time a human life begins, which is at conception (Ps. 139:13-16; Jer. 20:17), that life belongs to God. Those who trespass upon God's claim and take human life forfeit their right to life by the ordinance of God (Gen. 9:5-6). This is God's law of the sanctity of human life.

Such understanding is profound and vital for every person. That being the case, it should be taught to every child and reinforced throughout the duration of life. However, such knowledge is now often hidden from both children and adults and replaced with disproven theories devised by men. The results are predictable. The respect and honor that should be extended to every human being are often forgotten. Most importantly, the personal connection with God is lost, and the longing for Him is smothered. To counteract this, let us embrace the Biblical view of human life, demonstrate it in the way we live, and teach it to others. In this way, we can take hold of life in this world and use it to prepare for life eternal.
