Kyle's Korner

For my Noontime Nuggets videos, I have been concentrating for the last couple of weeks on 1 Corinthians 13, also known as "The Love Chapter" for its wonderful way of defining what love truly is.

Love is not something we fall into, as a many believe, but rather something that must be purposed in the heart. We choose by our actions and speech whether or not treat others with love. Some seem very easy to love, and others make it difficult because of their refusal to show love themselves.

Love, as defined by Paul, is long-suffering and kind. It does not envy or parade itself. It is not puffed up with pride and rude. It thinks of others first, in positive ways, rather than looking for the bad. It rejoices in truth, rather than iniquity. It bears, believes, hopes and endures all things and never fails. And what is love without any one of these characteristics? If it is lacking, can it truly be called love?

I pray that we endeavor to show love throughout our lives, rather than meanness and evil. This is God's desire for His children.
