

Kyle's Korner

TIME

This past week, I had a day in which my Apple Watch just simply wasn't working right. To its credit, it is a hand me down from Marissa, so we've had for quite a while between the two of us.

One day, I took it off its charger, and it was hot to the touch - but not so hot it couldn't be used, just abnormal. I went ahead and put it on and wore it to work, but by midday the battery was completely drained. I had to come home anyway, so I put it back on the charger. But when I put it on again it was still draining the battery. I ended up changing some of the settings and it seemed to reset itself, and the past three or four days it has been working like normal again. (Who knows what it was doing or why!?)

When my watch wasn't working properly, as sometimes is the case for all of us, the process of time did not change. My watch not working (and the whole time I'm playing with it) did not cause time itself to stand still. Even when we can't tell what time it is from one such device, we still have things to do and the responsibility to figure out the correct time, for our sakes as well as others'. Time stands still for no one!

This begs the question... Since there is no way for us to make time stand still, what are we doing with our time on Earth? Are we doing what we can to save the lost and teach them the gospel? Are we serving God well in the time we have, knowing that time will soon be gone? If you knew the end of time was near, is there anything you would change? "...whereas you do not know what will happen tomorrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor that appears for a little time and then vanishes away" (James 4:14, NKJV).
