

Kyle's Korner

We have a lot of "tools" that can make our lives easier and better - things that we use on a daily basis that may help us to accomplish certain tasks. In this regard, I think mainly in the realm of technology and the devices we use to help us in our jobs and various daily tasks.

It was brought up recently in my presence (a lesson of some kind), that while technology can be used for very good purposes, it can also serve to hinder us, especially in our Christian walk. The specific question was posed: "Is your phone your friend or foe?" This question really drives home the point that anything that can help us can also hinder us if we are not careful. Just as a hammer can be used to drive a nail, in building and productivity, it may also injure us if used improperly. And so it is with our phones, computers or other means intended for the improvement of life. While seemingly making our lives better, they could also be hurting our souls.

What do you use your (cell) phone for? Calling? Texting? In emergency situations especially, these can be very useful. Technology has, however, come a long way in just the last few years, and now they can be used to access the internet. The internet itself can get us in a great deal of trouble. Social media? Used properly, these can be great sources of information, but in the wrong hands or just being used carelessly, these may also serve to turn us away from Christ.

Television can be seen in the very same way, and probably other things that haven't come to my mind. No doubt, we should be very careful in our use of such "tools."

Use your time wisely. Make sure that you are an encourager rather than a discourager. Remember that God is always watching. Set a good example, and remember our mission - to bring lost souls to Christ.
