

Kyle's Korner

"YOU DO YOU!"

"You do you." "Be yourself." Have you ever had anyone tell you this? I think I've especially heard it a lot lately. In an effort to help or encourage someone... "You don't have to be like everyone else in the world. Just be who you are."

There's nothing really wrong with this thought. I do strive to be myself, more so than other people I know. I've never really tried to dress like others, talk like them, etc. I've never really had a problem with being different, in school or ever. If I'm not like you or not what you'd expect, deal with it or leave!

But maybe such encouragement is kind of shallow. Maybe life isn't as simple as "you do you." Does being who we are better us in any way, or is it just a way to excuse our behaviors or way of living? My thinking is that, by adopting such a mantra, it doesn't really change anything when there is something that needs to change.

One of my favorite verses is in 1 Corinthians 11:1: "Imitate me, just as I also imitate Christ." (NKJV) Paul isn't talking about imitating him in fashions or trends, but he is encouraging the Corinthians to follow, imitate or mimic him as a disciple of Christ, and more specifically to imitate Christ directly. "Follow me. Be like me, but only as I am like Christ."

Following the trends of the world will get us nowhere, but following Christ and trying to be like Him will prepare us for eternity. Accepting self without a willingness to change and improve is equally as wrong. I must be willing to change, to make myself better, for Christ and for the world. I must be willing to allow God to mold me into the person He wants me to be.

"O to be like Thee! O to be like Thee! Blessed Redeemer, pure as Thou art. Come in Thy sweetness. Come in Thy fullness. Stamp Thine own image deep on my heart."
