

Kyle's Korner

I use this space each week to write about pretty much whatever I want to write about. But what do you write when you have no words? This week, for instance, has been a nightmare for many in our surrounding area.

First, there was the school shooting in Nashville on Monday. This one was VERY close to home for us. Marissa said it was only about 10 minutes away from where she has been working on her internship at John Overton High School! Additionally, one of the victims was the niece of one the students she worked with at the TN School for the Blind. Six lives were lost that day, and countless others are left to deal with the aftermath. Scary... Sad... So many emotions from such a horrible circumstance.

Then Friday night, the small town of Readyville (very close to where my parents live and where I grew up in Kittrell) was hit hard by a passing tornado. Many homes were damaged or destroyed. A number of historical buildings are gone. I hear no lives were lost, but again, several families are left picking up the pieces of their past and wondering how to move forward.

Neither of these is something we would ever expect to happen to us, or even so close to home. During the storms Friday, we went to our safe place in a garage closet, watching the weather. There were many, "Oh, that's where so-and-so lives!" Worry for family and friends... I can say, of me at least, that lots of prayers went up, and the words of a song came to mind!

"When the long night has ended and the storms come no more, Let me stand in Thy presence on that bright peaceful shore. In that land where the tempest never comes, Lord, may I Dwell with Thee when the storm passes by?" - written by Mosie Lister

May these "storms" be a reminder to us all to put our faith and trust in God for whatever we face in life.
